ssociation of which a representation we gave nt a few days since is now ready to Homestead Association the pioneer or ions are not at all speculative in the or ense of the word. They are dependent rofits of their investment upon the gain ance in the value of their lands conse pon the co-operation of many individuals holders, and the advance in values of all ding lands by reason of the expansion of ion and demand for room outside of but r the city. The Riverside Homestead tion has a fraction over one hundred and acres of land situated just south of n on the east side of the river, the near ndary line being about one mile from the nding at East Portland. The tract lies strip along the Wallamet river half a mile h, and another strip along the Oregon and ia railroad, half a mile in length, the two being connected near the middle by two blocks (with a street between them) the forming a figure not unlike the letter H vided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with running at right angles) and 80 fraction

, along the river front. The shares num
, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that thus represents nearly a lot with an undi nterest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 frac hares are to be sold off at the proper time benefit of the Association shareholders in for the proceeds in proportion to the of shares held. When all shares are and the Association shall deter ginal price of shares or lots to be divided among the whole number of shares.

If a person wants a particular lot or block, willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more as the case may be) he pays it and takes or block as his individual property, the m being divided among the whole number reholders. It will be seen therefore, that t part of the tract lying along the river is plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet

THE RUSSIAN DEMAND

Full Text of Prince Gortschakoff's Note

The following is the full text of Gortschakoff's circular:

[illegible] to Baron Brunnow, [illegible] [illegible]

TZARSKOE SELO, Oct 19, 1870.

BARON: The successive alterations which the compromises considered to be the foundation of the equilibrium of Europe have in these last years undergone have obliged the Imperial Cabinet to examine the influence upon the political position of Russia resulting therefrom. Among these compromises that which interests us most directly is the treaty of the 18th-30th March, 1856. The special convention between the two Powers bordering on the Black Sea, annexed to this treaty, contains an engagement on the part of Russia to limit her naval forces to insignificant dimensions. In return this treaty offered her the principle of the neutralization of that sea.

In the view of the signatory Powers this principle was to remove all possibility of conflict, whether between the Powers bordering on the Black Sea or between them and the Maritime Powers. It was to increase the number of territories called by the unanimous agreement of Europe to enjoy the benefits of neutrality, and so to protect Russia herself from all danger of aggressions.

The experience of fifteen years has proved that this principle, upon which depends the security of the whole extent of the frontiers of the Russian Empire in this district, rests only on a theory. In fact, while Russia has armed in the Black Sea, has even by a declaration recorded in the protocols of the conferences, legally denied herself the possibility of taking efficient measures of maritime defense in the adjacent seas and ports, Turkey preserved the right of keeping up unlimited naval forces in the Archipelago, and the Straits, France and England preserved the power of concentrating their squadrons in the Mediterranean.

Moreover, by the terms of the treaty, the entrance to the Black Sea is formally and for ever prohibited to the flag of war, whether of the Riparian Powers or any other Power. But by virtue of the Convention called the Straits Convention, the passage through these Straits is closed to flags of war only in time of peace. It results from this contradiction that the coasts of the Russian Empire remain exposed to all aggressions even on the part of less powerful States as soon as they possess naval forces to which Russia would be able to oppose only a few vessels of small dimensions.

The treaty of 18th-30th March, 1856, moreover, has not escaped the infractions to which most of the European compromises have been subject, and in presence of which it would be difficult to affirm that written law, founded upon respect for treaties as a base of public law and rule for the relations between States, has preserved the same moral sanction which it may have had in other times.

We have seen the Principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia, the fate of which had been fixed by the treaty of peace and by the subsequent protocols under the guarantee of the Great Powers, effect a series of revolutions as contrary to the spirit as to the letter of these compromises, and which led them first to union, then to the summoning of a foreign Prince. These events occurred with the consent of the Porte and the acquiescence of the Great Powers, or at least without the latter having thought it necessary to make their decrees respected.

The representative of Russia was the only one to raise his voice to point out to the Cabinets that by this toleration they would put themselves in contradiction to the explicit stipulations of the treaty. Beyond doubt if these concessions, granted to one of the Christian nationalities of the East, had resulted from a genial understanding between the Cabinets and the Porte by virtue of a principle applicable to the whole of the Christian populations of Turkey, the Imperial Cabinet would have had nothing to do but applaud. But they were exclusive.

The Imperial Cabinet then could not but be struck with the fact that it had been possible to infringe with impunity the treaty of 1856 but a few years after its conclusion in one of its essential clauses, in the face of the Great Powers assembled in conference at Paris, and representing as a whole the high collective authority on which rested the peace of the East. This infraction was not the only one. At several intervals and under various pretexts the entrance to the Straits has been opened to foreign ships of war, and that of the Black Sea to whole squadrons, the presence of which was a violation of the character of absolute neutrality ascribed to these waters.

In proportion as the pledges offered by the treaty grew weak, and especially the guarantees of an effective neutrality of the Black Sea, the introduction of iron-clad ships, unknown and unforeseen at the time of the conclusion of the treaty of 1856, augmented for Russia the dangers of an eventual war by increasing in considerable proportions the already evident inequality of the respective naval forces.

In this state of things His Majesty the Emperor was obliged to ask himself, What are the rights and what are the duties which accrue to Russia from these modifications in the general situation and from these infractions of engagements to which he has not ceased to be scrupulously faithful, although they were conceived in a spirit of mistrust with respect to him.

Upon mature examination of this question His Imperial Majesty has arrived at the following conclusion, which you are directed to bring to the knowledge of the Government to which you are accredited.

Our august master cannot admit in law that the treaties infringed in several of their essential and general clauses remain obligatory in those which touch the direct interests of his empire. His Imperial Majesty cannot admit in fact, that the security of Russia should depend upon a fiction which has not withstood the test of time, and be put in peril by his respect for engagements which have not been observed in their integrity. The Emperor, confiding in the sentiments of equity of the signatory powers of the treaty of 1856, and in the consciousness they have of their own dignity, instructs you to declare that his Imperial Majesty cannot longer consider himself bound by the obligations of the treaty of the 18th and 30th of March, 1856, so far as these limit his rights of sovereignty in the Black Sea; that His Imperial Majesty considers it his right and his duty to give notice to His Majesty the Sultan in a special [illegible] the special convention additional to the said treaty which fixes the number and the dimensions of the ships of war which the two Riparian powers reserve the right of maintaining in the Black Sea; that he loyally gives notice of this to the powers signing and guaranteeing the general treaty, of which this special convention is an integral part; that he restores to His Majesty the Sultan the full possession of his rights in this respect, [illegible] equally [illegible] himself.

In discharging this duty you will be careful to state that our august master [illegible] in view only the security and dignity of his Empire. It is by no means the purpose of His Imperial Majesty to raise the Eastern Question upon this point. He has no other wish than the preservation and consolidation of peace.

He fully maintains his adhesion to the general principles of the treaty of 1856, which settled the position of Turkey in the European system. He is ready to come to an understanding with the Powers who signed this arrangement, either to confirm its general stipulations or to renew them, or to substitute for them any other equitable arrangement which may be thought fit to secure the repose of the East and the European equilibrium. His Majesty, however, is convinced that peace and equilibrium will have a stronger guarantee when they shall have been placed on more just and solid bases than those resulting from a position which no great Power could accept as a natural condition of existence.

You are desired to read this dispatch to the Minister of Foreign Affairs and to leave a copy with him.

Receive, etc. GORTSCHAKOFF.

EARL GRANVILLE'S REPLY TO PRINCE GORTSCHAKOFF.

Earl Granville to Sir A. Buchanan

FOREIGN OFFICE, Nov 10, 1870.

SIR: Baron Brunnow made to me yesterday the communication respecting the Convention between the Emperor of Russia and the Sultan limiting their naval forces in the Black Sea signed at Paris on the 30th of March, 1856, to which you allude in your telegram of yesterday afternoon. In my dispatch of yesterday I gave you an account of what passed between us, and I now propose to observe upon Prince Gortschakoff's dispatches of the 19th and 20th ult., communicated to me by the Russian Ambassador.

On that occasion Prince Gortschakoff declares, on the part of his Imperial Majesty, that the treaty of 1856 has been infringed in various respects to the detriment of Russia, and more especially in the case of the Principalities, against the explicit protest of his representative, and in consequence of these infractions Russia is entitled to renounce those stipulations of the treaty which directly touch her interests. It is then announced that she will no longer be bound by the treaties which restrict her rights of sovereignty in the Black Sea.

We have here an allegation that certain facts have occurred which in the judgment of Russia are at variance with certain stipulations of the treaty, and the assumption is made that Russia, upon the strength of her own judgment as to the character of those facts, is entitled to release from certain other stipulations of that instrument. This assumption is limited in its practical application to some of the provisions of the treaty. But the assumption of a right to renounce any one of its terms involves the assumption of a right to renounce the whole.

This statement is wholly independent of the reasonableness or unreasonableness, on its own merits, of the desire of Russia to be released from the observation of the stipulations of the treaty of 1856 respecting the Black Sea. For the question is, in whose hands lies the power of releasing one or more of the parties from all or any of these stipulations? It has always been held that that right belongs only to the Governments who have been parties to the original instrument. The dispatches of Prince Gortschakoff appear to assume that any one of the Powers who have signed the engagement may allege that occurrences have taken place which in its opinion are at variance with the provisions of the treaty, and although this view is not shared or admitted by the co-signatory Powers, may found upon that allegation, not a request to those Governments for the consideration of the case—but an announcement to them that it has emancipated itself or holds itself emancipated from any stipulations of the treaty which it thinks fit to disapprove.

Yet it is quite evident that the effect of such doctrine and of any proceeding which, with or without avowal, is founded upon it, is to bring the entire authority and efficiency of treaties under the discretionary control of each of the Powers who have signed them, the result of which would be the entire destruction of treaties in their essence. For whereas their whole object is to bind Powers to one another, and for this purpose each one of the parties surrenders a portion of its free agency, by the doctrine and proceeding now in question one of the parties in its separate and individual capacity brings back the entire subject into its own control and remains bound only to itself.

Accordingly Prince Gortschakoff has announced in those dispatches the intention of Russia to continue to observe certain of the provisions of the treaty. However satisfactory this may be in itself, it is obviously an expression of the free will of that Power which it might at any time alter or withdraw, and in this it is open to the same objections as the other portions of the communications, because it implies the right of Russia to annul the treaty on the ground of allegations of which she constitutes herself the only judge.

The question therefore arises, not whether any desire expressed by Russia ought to be carefully examined in a friendly spirit by the Co-signatory Powers, but whether they are to accept from her the announcement that by her own act, without any consent from them, she has released herself from a solemn covenant.

I need scarcely say that Her Majesty's Government have received this communication with deep regret, because it opens a discussion which might unsettle the cordial understanding it has been their earnest endeavor to maintain with the Russian Empire. And for the above mentioned reasons it is impossible for Her Majesty's Government to give any sanction on their part to the course announced by Prince Gortschakoff. If, instead of such a declaration, the Russian Government had addressed Her Majesty's Government and the other Powers who are parties of the treaty of 1856, and had proposed for consideration with them whether anything has occurred which could be held to amount to an infraction of the treaty, or whether there is anything in the terms which from altered circumstances presses with undue severity upon Russia, or which, in the course of events, had become unnecessary for the due protection of Turkey, Her Majesty's Government would not have refused to examine the question in concert with the co-signataries to the treaty. Whatever might have been the result of such communication, a risk of future complications and a very dangerous precedent as to the validity of international obligations would have been avoided.

I am, etc. GRANVILLE.

P. S. You will read and give a copy of this dispatch to Prince Gortschakoff. G.

THE CURATIVE POWER OF MUSIC.—It was the celebrated German physician Hoffland who first fully recognized the curative power of music. Frequently the life of a dying man may be saved by gentle music at or near the bedside. It is only to catch his attention and hold it with something that imparts pleasurable feelings in order to sustain him beyond the moment of supreme exhaustion which marks the crisis of disease. Usually, however, the ears of the dying are regaled with no sweeter music than the sighs and snuffles of their sorrowing friends. Of course they are troubled and depressed, and when the critical breath comes fail to catch it, and so die. There is much in this theory.

Music as an agent for promoting health is of high value. If invalids would devote an hour or two daily to practising vocal music it would restore them to health. Persons with weak lungs may thus ward off fatal lung diseases. The effects on the body and mind are excellent.

This is the popular refrain among the officers, crews and passengers on board the racing steamboats on the Mississippi:

For we'll give her a little more [illegible]
And open her throttle wide
To show them the way to Natchez
Running against the tide.
Oh, a little more rosin!
A little more pitch and pine;
Throw in a can of glycerine
And a barrel of turpentine.

The Plea of the Liberal Canadians.

GROWING DISSATISFACTION IN THE DOMINION—STATEMENT OF CANADIAN GRIEVANCES—THE EMIGRATION TO THE STATES—VIEWS OF THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY—PROSPECTS OF ANNEXATION.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Since the first probability that England would be drawn into the Continental war, the Liberal or Reform party of Canada has assumed a tone of radicalism and independence ominous of coming trouble between the two countries. The discontent aroused by the Red River insurrection, the irresolution of the Queen's Government in grappling with the outbreak, and the standing grievances of viceregal rule, have culminated in the general uprising of the Progressive party against the policy of fogyism and dependence which has been for years the curse of Canada. Formal indictment is brought against the Government for sins of omission and grievous wrongs done. It is claimed that under the present policy Canada goes backward—in population, industry, and general resources. The Government has no comprehension of the needs of a new country, but acts on theories of European polity wholly inadequate to the solution of Canadian problems. In a barren reign of years, but one successful achievement can be claimed by the Crown Ministry—the defeat of Fenian attacks, and even this is shorn of special prominence by the prompt action of the Washington authorities.

The most bitter complaint is, however, levied at the policy which permits the depopulation of our country by wholesale emigration to the United States. There seems no good reason why Canada, with a soil as fertile and rich in mineral resources as the States, should not be drained of not only its immigrants but old settlers as well. Says the principal organ of the malcontents: "During the last year the United States received over 350,000 emigrants; of these, 104,000 were Germans, 67,000 Irish, and the remainder, 41,000, were from the British American Provinces. For more than thirty years this gradual exodus has continued, and is attributed to bad laws and illiberal governments. The total loss of population here is estimated at 500,000 souls. Some of your statisticians estimated the money loss from this emigration in round numbers at fifty millions of dollars. Probably half this sum would be nearer the truth, but the bitterness of our loss seems intensified by a contemplation of the gain of the States. The Queen is not spared. 'The Government pays $50,000 a year to a red tape and sealing wax governor who is sent here to represent her they call a Queen, a good lady with whom we have nothing whatever to do. For less than this your outspoken champion, Patrick Henry, nearly came to grief, and for very little more the best and bravest of Ireland's educated [illegible] spent years on Van Dieman's Land.' The sentiment of Gen. Butler is not so strong for annexation as this Canadian dissatisfaction. So long oppressed by the weakness and misgovernment of their statesmen, it is impossible that our people should not at the proper times take their destinies in their own hands, and cast their fortunes where success and good government are attainable. We cannot forever stand the disorganizing attrition of misgovernment and depopulation, and the strongest plea for annexation will eventually be urged by the Dominion itself. So long, however, as we can afford to endure, the United States may well be content to wait."

The Methodist Book Concern Safe Robbery

[From the New York Times, Nov. 22.]

Copies of the following editorial article prepared for this week's edition of the Christian Advocate of this city were distributed yesterday among the clergymen who attended the afternoon meeting of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The report is presented in our columns solely upon the authority of the editor of the Advocate, and without the indorsement of the Times.

"It has not been forgotten by our readers that about the end of last August there occurred a robbery of the safe in the Mission Rooms, No. 805 Broadway. Some facts connected with the affair were published in these columns soon afterward, and the patient waiting of those interested to know all about it was solicited until such time as the necessary investigations could be made by those having the matter in hand. Since then we have said nothing about it publicly, but the end having been at last reached, our promise and the proprieties of the case require of us a statement of the chief facts as they have been developed. Only a few days after the robbery, and before the Missionary Society had taken any cognizance of the case, Dr. Harris' official duties required him to go to Ohio, but he remained absent but a few days. Immediately upon his return he called together informally some dozen members of the Missionary Board to consult with Dr. Durbin and himself as to the best method by which to proceed in the case. It was the expressed opinion of all present that it was desirable that the Missionary Board should take the case in hand, and it was agreed that it would be wisest to refer the whole matter to a select committee, the personnel of which was also agreed upon. The plan thus informally indicated was adopted at the regular monthly meeting of the Board a few days later. The committee took the matter in hand, and at the October meeting of the Board reported their work. It appeared that the outer door of the safe had been opened in the usual way—the inner one had been broken; that there were but two persons, the Assistant Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary, who were acquainted with the combinations of the lock or could open the safe, unless a knowledge of the combinations had been surreptitiously obtained by some other persons. The system of combinations had never been written down, but was held in memory by these two officials. The circumstances of the robbery made it very manifest that it was the work of parties well acquainted with the premises, and the report intimates that the suspicions of the committee were strongly inclined toward certain unnamed parties. It appears also that only a few days after the robbery most of the stolen property was brought back by the Recording Secretary, who refused to give any information respecting the parties from whom he received it. There were also intimations that some sort of promises, it was not said what, had been given by Dr. Durbin, to whom most of it belonged, before it was given up to him. But no proof was given that he had in any wise compromised himself in the affair. The property returned was almost entirely of a kind not safely available to the robbers. A coupon Government bond of $1,000, and a considerable amount of money, specie and currency, was not then returned. Some time afterward most of the money came back by the same way as that by which the other property had been received. The $1,000 bond is still missing. The Recording Secretary, when inquired of by the committee by what means he came into possession of the property, declined to reveal the name of the parties who brought it to him, pleading obligations that bound him conscientiously to that course. The Board were not satisfied with the report, or rather with the state of affairs as reported by the committee. The subject was, therefore, recommitted to Bishop Janes, who was instructed to associate with himself five other members of the Board, and to further prosecute the inquiry. The Bishop called to his help the same persons who had constituted the first committee. Their report was presented to the Board last week, which, however, in no important particular changed the aspects of the case, and ended by recommending that nothing further was advisable than to submit anew the former report, and the report was adopted by the Board—but not without a decided dissent from a respectable, if not a numerous, minority. We report the facts without comments."

The tragic incidents and wide-spread destruction of the Virginia floods are nearly paralleled by the devastations on the great Platte river, which recently overflowed its banks, and ruined settlements and crops for hundreds of miles in its mad course to the Missouri. Many of the houses on the Kansas and Colorado side of the Platte, and its tributaries, are built of adobe, a species of unburnt brick made of mud, and when the waters came these frail habitations melted like snow under a hot sun. Cattle grazing miles from the rivers were carried off bodily, and have since been found hundreds of miles from their corrals. The branch railroads of the Missouri and Kansas suffered severely, and in the northern limits of the inundation the late crops were utterly destroyed. A picturesque incident is narrated of a Kinney family, on the northern Kansas border, whose modest log and frame house, built on a hill, and embowered in a labyrinth of flowers and vines, was carried from its site and lodged squarely in the branches of a giant tree. Everything was safe when the family retired, but shortly after midnight Mr. Kinney was awakened by a curious creaking noise, and upon opening his lattice found a river of rushing water roaring about his dwelling. He watched alone, during the lingering hours of the night, not daring to awaken his family, and in the morning found that, like a modern Swiss Robinson, he was securely domiciled in the branches of an immense and well remembered tree, about 300 yards from his original home-site. For two days the water held him in the leafy tenement, and on the third assistance came as the flood receded and the half starved family were rescued.

General Von Der Tann, who lately became so distinguished everywhere in consequence of his defeat by the French, is a very old Bavarian officer. He was born on the day of the battle of Waterloo, 18th of June, 1815. In 1833 he entered the Bavarian artillery as a Lieutenant, and gradually rose in the service. He first became extensively known in the Schleswig-Holstein campaign of 1848, when he commanded a free corps allied by his name. He was admired for his bravery rather than military skill. In the war with Prussia in 1866 the Bavarians met with a succession of defeats, for which Von Der Tann, then a General, was unjustly held responsible. It has since been shown that the fault lay with the Field Marshal, Prince Carl of Bavaria, and with the bad organization of the troops. In the present war Gen. Von Der Tann has had several important successes. At the battle of Weissenberg he contributed much to the victory by a skillfully led and energetic charge. Still more brilliant was his part in the operations of Sedan, where for six hours he conducted the sanguinary struggle for the possession of the village of Bazeilles and the equally fierce conflict at Balan. Appointed to command the operations toward the Loire, he was victorious at Artheny and at Orleans. All these successes, however, did less to make him generally known abroad than his recent repulse. So uniform have been German victories that only defeat gives fame.

Let us Rejoice Together

[illegible] telegraph points us to [illegible] of President Grant's annual message and accompanying documents. It is not certainly an occasion of any very extended rejoicings and halloings on the part of those of our Democratic brethren who insist that the country is going to the demnition bow-wows, and who never jubilate except when they find some real or fancied proof that the country really is going in that direction, or when they hear of some Democratic success, which means the same thing. The President says we have had a year of peace and prosperity. Of this fact however everybody except our Democratic friends aforesaid were already aware. The latter have not trodden very much in paths strewn with roses, since the days when they went whoring after the goddess of secession, and we can readily understand why as partisans they refuse to believe much in the idea of prosperity. That as applied to the whole country is a word of abstraction and never has a practical meaning till it comes to apply to their partisan organization. Yet President Grant when he says we have had a year of prosperity, but expresses a fact attested not only by the observation of all fair men, but by the hard facts and figures set out in the report of the Secretary of the Treasury. That officer says the public debt has been reduced since March 1, 1869, the round sum of $181 000 000 or at the rate of over $100 000 000 per year, a rate which would extinguish the entire debt within a generation. The reduction of the interest is over $10 000 000, which reduces proportionally the taxes bearing upon the industries of the country. This certainly proves the further statement of the Secretary that the revenue system is a good one and cannot be abandoned suddenly or rashly without great injury to business and labor.

The accomplishments of the last twenty-one months in the direction of relief have been reached while the whole country has been going on toward wealth, and while industrial enterprises have been developed such as were never heard of in ante-war periods. Commerce has, meanwhile, recovered much from the state of prostration in which the Administration found it, the resources of the country have been multiplied in a most astonishing ratio, immigration and the development of hitherto unproductive domain have exceeded the like growth of any former period, the people have lived comfortably and acquired substantial independence or wealth, and on all sides there has been, in the words of the President, a period of "peace and prosperity." Over this one fact we invite all our darkly-prognosticating Democratic friends to rejoice with us. Come, now, let us rejoice together over the year of peace and prosperity and the lightening of the burdens which the wickedness of your party thrust upon us all.

Tonnage of the United States

The Bureau of Statistics at Washington has published a table showing the number and tonnage of vessels owned in the various sea, river, and lake ports of the United States. The total number of vessels employed in our ocean and interior trade is 28,138—of an aggregate tonnage of 3,946,149 tons. Of that number there are 16,995 sailing vessels, with a tonnage of 2,135,268, 3,341 steam vessels with a tonnage of 1,015,075, and 7 802 unrigged vessels—such as canal boats—with a tonnage of 795,803. There are, therefore, over five times as many sailing vessels as there are steamers, and the comparative tonnage of the two classes is a little more than two to one.

On the Mississippi river and its tributaries the number of steam vessels is 895, with a tonnage of 250,000, a considerable diminution since 1860. This is owing to the rapid growth of the railway system of that section.

The tonnage of the port of New York is 979,917. That of Boston is 281,824. The two chief fishing ports of Massachusetts, Gloucester and New Bedford, employ nearly 1 000 vessels, but their aggregate tonnage is below 90,000.

The trade of the great lakes employs 1 548 sailing vessels, with a tonnage of 252,453; 641 steam vessels, with a tonnage of 142,474; and 3,154 unrigged vessels, with a tonnage of 285 535. The total number of vessels employed being 5 343, with an aggregate tonnage of 680 462.

The Pacific coast employs 802 sailing vessels, with a tonnage of 88 946 tons, and 177 steam vessels, with a tonnage of 53,088 tons.

The total tonnage of the United States as above shown, is 3 946,149. The report for 1860 gave the tonnage for sailing vessels at 4,485 931 and of steam vessels at 867,937—an aggregate of 5 356 868 tons. The loss, therefore, in the last ten years is 1 407,710 tons—equal to over 26 per cent. Part of this loss, says the New York Herald, is undoubtedly to be attributed to the competition of land lines of commerce, railroads, which have attracted much of the internal carrying trade that was formerly done by water, and part also to the competition of foreign vessels which have absorbed most of the foreign ocean commerce which used to be done in American ships.

On this general subject the Register of the Treasury, in his report just published says: "The chief cause of the decadence of American shipping is the supercedure of sailing vessels by steam, and the substitution of iron for wood. While we have inexhaustible supplies of coal and iron and unsurpassed facilities for building iron ships we have no single establishment which can compare with the great works in England and Scotland. The admission of foreign built vessels to the privileges of an American register would tend to crush out for an indefinite period all attempts at iron shipbuilding in this country and to denationalize our merchant marine in the interests of our most formidable rival in Europe. It is to be hoped that such means will be adopted as shall tend to place at least one half of our shipping engaged in the foreign trade under the American flag."

THE TERRITORIES

The Merry Bachelor's Club is an association in Olympia which gave its first public party last night at Columbia Hall.

The speckled trout in Deschute river are ravenously hungry for salmon eggs, and an Olympia paper says he who casts spawn upon the water comes back with a full basket in an hour or so.

The site chosen for the future Penitentiary in Washington Territory is upon McNeil's Island which contains five or six sections of land bountifully supplied with timber and water, easy of access, and within plain sight of Steilacoom. A map of the tract together with the papers relating to the same and a letter to Mr Garfield requesting his efforts to have the appropriation for the erection of the building made available as early as possible have all been forwarded to Washington and an early commencement of the work is looked for.

The Railroad Excursion

[illegible] the Oregon and California Railroad [illegible] made up a large train of their elegant passenger cars, and at 8 o'clock A M a large number of citizens of Portland took their seats for Albany. Invitations had been extended by the company to several hundred citizens of this place [illegible] Mr Holladay [illegible] hospitality [illegible] At Oregon City the excursionists were reinforced by about forty of the citizens of that place who had accepted invitations to go. At Salem the crowd was so largely augmented [illegible] a splendid lunch was served and the whole party reached Albany in the best possible [illegible]. The good people of that town were fully alive to the great event of the opening of the railroad. The entire population appeared to be in waiting at the depot. Flags were streaming in the wind, a brass band was in attendance, and the Albany Fire Department were out in uniform. The day was fine and everything was propitious for the occasion. The approach of the cars was greeted with music and cheers from those assembled. A splendid flag had been provided by the citizens to be presented to Mr Holladay in commemoration of the occasion. When the first general outburst of enthusiasm had somewhat subsided Mayor Stannard stepped forward, addressed Mr Holladay in suitable terms and presented the flag, which was received with thanks. Hon J H Mitchell, of this city, then delivered the following speech:

MR MAYOR: On behalf of Mr Holladay, President of the Oregon and California Railroad Company, and in his name and with his thanks, I receive from you and through you from the citizens of Albany this beautiful token not only of your personal esteem, but of your just appreciation of the consummation of a work which is of incalculable importance not only to your city and county but the State at large.

And I am not surprised Mr Chairman that the completion of a railroad whereby your beautiful city, your fertile valley and your generous and appreciative people are brought into a closer union with the great metropolis of our young but growing State should be celebrated in an appropriate and becoming manner.

And have you not abundant reasons for congratulations on this occasion? Is not this the commencement of a new era in your history and one that will be remembered with joyous gladness by yourselves and your posterity for years to come? And one that will tell with increasing power for good upon your material prosperity, and upon your future history and ultimate destiny as a people?

The completion of one hundred miles of railroad in any country, at any time, and under even the most favorable circumstances, is a work of vital importance and one which entitles the projector and builder to the unqualified thanks and kindly feelings of all the people through whose community it runs but how infinitely stronger are the reasons for congratulations upon the part of the people of this city and of this State, when we consider the adverse circumstances under which this enterprise has been inaugurated and carried forward to successful completion. A little less than three years ago, I addressed the citizens of Albany on the subject of a railroad through the Wallamet Valley. Many who are now within the hearing of my voice were then present. I at that time invoked your co-operation with Mr Elliott, who had recently come to our State, and imposing on the unsuspecting credulity of our people, had induced many—myself among the number—to believe that he controlled sufficient capital to commence and carry on to completion this great enterprise. Unhappily for the people of Oregon this claim upon the part of Mr Elliott soon proved to be groundless. Scarcely had work been commenced when his depleted treasury failed to respond to the necessary demand; promises were broken, assurances, oft repeated, became as ropes of sand, work was suspended, we were all deceived, and our prospects for a railroad in Oregon vanished into thin air and soon were lost in the gloomy fogs engendered by shameless misrepresentation and gross perfidy upon the one hand, and innocent disappointment upon the other. At this particular juncture, when the gloomy clouds of disaster flung their murky shadows across our brightest hopes with reference to railroad enterprises in Oregon, Mr Holladay came to our State; he took a survey of the situation, he examined critically the complications with reference to the Congressional land grant, he viewed the whole field of enterprise before him, and looking to the end from the beginning he said in substance and effect, to the people of Oregon: "If your Legislature will designate the East Side Company as the one to take and manage the Congressional land grant I will build your railroad." The East Side Company was designated by the Legislature of 1868 and how faithfully Mr Holladay has kept his promise may be best answered by the shrill voice of the iron horse as he to-day treads in triumph the streets of your own beautiful city.

Through difficulties of the most trying character, through the heat of summer and the dreary storms of winter, against dissensions both internal and external, with motives questioned and purposes misconstrued, with words of mistrust and doubt, and I might say of opposition and accusation constantly falling from the lips of many of our people, surrounded with all these adverse and discouraging circumstances Mr Holladay—with a will and an energy that knows no failing—has moved steadily forward until he has consummated a work that stands before you to-day and which shall remain for years to come as the proudest, the noblest, the most substantial and enduring monument of his good faith toward the people of this State, and of the faithful performance upon his part of the pledge exacted, and every promise given.

And it is but due to the people of Albany to say that this flattering demonstration upon your part, carries with it a convincing argument of your capability and disposition to properly appreciate the consummation of a work of such vast importance as is the completion of a railroad from Portland to Albany, through one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys upon which the sun ever shone or the eye of man rested.

And I doubt not that in the future as Mr Holladay goes forth, as it is his fixed purpose to do, in developing the material resources of Oregon, in constructing her railroads, in stimulating enterprise in all its various departments, in inviting and bringing forward emigration, and thus advancing the general welfare of the whole State, that he will receive your heartfelt sympathy—your kind words and encouragement, and so far as you conveniently may, your material aid and pecuniary support.

Railroads follow citizens, are the great leverage power whereby the crude elements of undeveloped and unproductive resources are thrown into the great crucible of labor and capital, and from which must ever emanate the golden stream of wealth. They transform the desolate prairie and the dense forest into garden spots and beauty and happy homes for the habitation of men. They furnish labor alike to the merchant, the artisan and the daily laborer. They build up a market for all your surplus products at your doors. They increase the value of your lands in a ratio that almost astonishes you, and which you can scarcely comprehend. They surround you not only with all the necessaries of life, but like the fabled horn of plenty they spread upon your table the luxuries and rarest comforts of the land.

Who, therefore, does not feel like rejoicing on this occasion? It would seem as though we were just recovering from that Rip Van Winkle slumber into which we had fallen and in which our State was pr[illegible] passing away its existence, not realizing its own power, while the mighty tramp of the onward march of the great army of human progress of material development and a higher civilization was echoing and re-echoing across every valley and plain of every section and State of this great nation save those of our own. But happily for our people and our future history this death-like spell has been broken, the dark and gloomy cloud that encompassed our youthful commonwealth, paralyzing all its energies within its fatal mesmeric influence, like that deadening gloom that for twenty years cast its fatal shadows across the brow of the unfortunate hero of Falling waters, has been dispelled; a new era has dawned upon us, and we to-day can realize that we have made a giant stride toward the consummation of that grand system of internal improvement that will eventually and at no distant day make Oregon the gem of the Pacific States. And is not the work of to-day a sufficient earnest to warrant us in looking forward with a confident hope to that approaching future when emigration shall pour in upon us not only from our sister States but from the noble yeomanry of that great nation the blood of whose people is to-day mingling with and turning to crimson the broad waters of the Rhine, and from the hard fisted sons of toil that dwell on the Emerald Isle, and among the frosts and snows of Sweden and Norway and along the vine clad hills of the troubled waters of the Seine. When these waiting people shall, with their wives and [illegible] bent hither [illegible] from the [illegible] [illegible] that now sweeps like a [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] in this land [illegible] peace and [illegible] [illegible] the Willamette [illegible] the seat of Empire [illegible] Empire [illegible]

May our young and noble State impelled by the all-abiding influences of labor and capital, and by a just national policy, move proudly on over the great causeway of its future greatness toward that exalted destiny that awaits her when freed from the shackles of inactivity she shall [illegible] that [illegible] which her climate [illegible] her various resources, her generous people [illegible] her commanding geographical position [illegible] yet for a bright and shining star and a mighty ever-surpassing power for good [illegible] our cherished sisterhood of States.

But while we join in congratulations over the completion of a railroad thus far on the east side of the Willamette let us not be forgetful of that portion of our State that lies to the westward, and whose slumbering resources are but awaiting the vitalizing touch of capital to rouse the people of that beautiful portion of our commonwealth to leap for joy and their fertile valleys to bloom and blossom as the rose; and may we not hope that the day is not far distant when the scream of the locomotive, as it moves proudly southward from day to day through the streets of your own beautiful city, shall be answered by the weird neighing of the iron horse as it wakes the solitudes of the historic Hickreal and reverberates through the classic shades of the far famed [illegible]

And may we not also hope that the demonstration of to-day may be the signal for the burying of all strife and jealousies and contentions, so that in the future the whole people of this State, without regard to party, sect or section, may work together as one man, strong in the faith, in building up the material prosperity of Oregon, and placing laurels upon her youthful brow, plucked from her own limitless treasures, that shall grow brighter with age and more beautiful with the frosts of time. Then will this State of our adoption become an Empire of wealth, the home of happy millions commanding the respect of States and the admiration of Nations.

Again I thank you Mr Chairman, and on behalf of Mr Holladay and through you the citizens of Albany for this beautiful emblem, and trust that as it waves from year to year over the stately head of the iron steed that bears the name of your growing city it may not only emblematize this glorious nationality of ours—this great union of States loved and cherished by us all, so well—but that it may also, as I know it shall be by the recipient of to-day, be preserved and cherished as a beautiful memento of your personal esteem and of your generous appreciation of the consummation of a work which may well be denominated of infinite importance to your city and county and the whole State of Oregon.

At the conclusion of Mr Mitchell's speech Mrs Dunway, of Albany, in behalf of the ladies of that place presented to Mr Holladay an elegant banner beautifully wrought and exquisitely finished, accompanying the presentation with the following address:

To Mr Holladay, the worthy proprietor of the Oregon and California Railroad, and to the Superintendent, engineers and other employes of the construction train: The ladies of Albany come with greeting. In presenting to you this flag, the work of our hands in honor of the J B Stephens the engine which first waked railroad echoes in our hills and forests, and which now proudly puffs its panting breath into our faces, we feel that we but feebly express our appreciation of the magnitude of its stupendous achievements. May labor and capital which together have accomplished this mighty work ever work together in harmony. To Mr Holladay and to the James B Stephens we have dedicated this Star Spangled Banner, knowing that it will not be ashamed of its company.

Mr Holladay accepted the banner thanking the ladies of Albany in an appropriate manner for their favor. Several beautiful station flags, appropriately inscribed, were presented by the young girls of Albany, through Miss Mendenhall. Dr Loryea responded in a speech suited to the occasion.

A series of resolutions had been prepared by the citizens of Albany to be presented. Judge Powell appeared on the stand and read them in a clear voice, when they were adopted with loud cheers. They are as follows:

Resolved, That we welcome with unfeigned pleasure the completion of the Oregon and California Railroad to this city, believing that it will infuse a greater energy and foster a more rapid advancement in our people, afford cheaper facilities for travel and transportation, relieve us in part from the grasp of thereless monopoly and inaugurate a prosperous future, not only for Albany, but for the entire Willamette Valley.

Resolved, That as citizens of Albany we feel thankful to those who so generously contributed their money and town lots toward securing a depot at this point, thereby greatly enhancing the value of our property, and that too at such a small outlay upon the part of many of us.

Resolved, That we should ever hold in grateful memory our esteemed fellow citizen Ben Holladay, the father of the railroad in Oregon, for the rapid and efficient manner in which he has pushed forward this great enterprise, trusting that he may ever as heretofore prove the stalwart foe of monopoly, the pioneer of Progress and the poor man's friend.

Resolved, That we approve of the enlightened and liberal policy of Congress in granting aid of credit and lands to the Oregon and California Railroad, and we earnestly hope that the same wise and liberal policy will be continued until we are connected with the railroad system of the East and West.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the city papers.

Rev E R Geary, on behalf of the citizens of Albany and Linn county, then delivered a most appropriate and finished address. It was worthy of the occasion and the man. He showed in elegant language what a great event the construction of the railroad was, not only for Albany and Linn county but for the whole State, and depicted the great results which were to flow from the auspicious event [illegible] [illegible]

Other gentlemen from Salem, Oregon City and other places were all [illegible] for speeches. Among those who responded were Hon W [illegible] Johnson of Oregon City, Hon Ben Hayden of Polk county and Hon J F Caples of Portland. We regret that we are unable to furnish verbatim reports of their addresses as well as the excellent one delivered by Mr Geary.

After several hours spent in these exercises commemorative of an occasion which will be hereafter referred to as a mark deep in the history of Oregon, the whistle blew the signal for the return. The excursionists took [illegible] of their [illegible] at Albany [illegible] [illegible] the road throughout was [illegible] [illegible] The bridges especially, that over the Santiam river, was pronounced to be [illegible] of workmanship [illegible] anywhere [illegible] thing of its kind [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] from Albany [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A little [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the future of this State [illegible] [illegible] enterprise [illegible] [illegible] future of Oregon can accomplish.

A man named Henry Richardson has been put under bonds in New York to answer a charge made against him that he was a manufacturer of tailless fowls and guilty of cruelty to a common fowl generally known as a rooster by cutting off its bill or beak, piercing out and destroying both of its eyes, taking a part of its brain out, pulling the feathers from its head and neck and then skinning the same, after which the skin was so drawn up as to make the said rooster appear headless. According to the testimony Richardson was in the common practice of performing this operation upon roosters, which were sold for the purpose of public exhibitions, and the unfortunate fowls after undergoing the operation lived in great pain and torture for periods ranging from one week to two months. He was bound over to answer.

Russia, Austria, Italy, Spain, France and the United States now have a legal tender paper with a forced circulation.

Snow and Rain Storm in Southern Oregon

JACKSONVILLE, Dec 8.—Rain has been falling here incessantly since Sunday night and the prospects [illegible] the miners are looking bright. Snow has fallen on the Siskiyou mountains to the depth of [illegible] feet and telegraphic communication with San Francisco has been cut off.

Considering the bad weather and heavy storms the stages are making good time—arriving quite regularly.

[illegible] It stormed worse than ever last night and this morning. Nothing over Scott mountain [illegible] there yet.

Two [illegible] one weighing forty and the other [illegible] night with a hook and line [illegible] wharf, are pronounced by the [illegible] the largest yet seen in a stall there. CITY.

A PLEASANT INCIDENT OF THE EXCURSION [illegible] We learn from a returned excursionist [illegible] [illegible] that among [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] The progress made [illegible] [illegible] rapid as it would have been [illegible] in reaching Aurora it was determined [illegible] back the car that gave the most trouble [illegible] consequence [illegible] the guests were [illegible] the train and there [illegible] [illegible] hundred and fifty of them [illegible] something like [illegible] themselves somewhat thicker than [illegible] [illegible] though everybody accepted [illegible] [illegible] the best possible humor and [illegible] [illegible] the way with overflowing spirits. The [illegible] crowded passenger car though it came down [illegible] [illegible] getting so [illegible] [illegible] set fire to the lubricating [illegible] [illegible] stoppages delayed the down train nearly [illegible] hours.

[illegible] the boys apparently from eight to twelve [illegible] attracted considerable attention yesterday [illegible] the post office by their awkward though [illegible] attempts to cultivate [illegible] They had among them at first only [illegible] pipe which they took a whiff at in turn [illegible] this was too slow for such fast young gentlemen [illegible] a few minutes they had each [illegible] [illegible] pipe and cane stem and they [illegible] themselves in a friendly stairway, [illegible] they puffed and blowed vig[illegible] [illegible] determined to do or die. When finally [illegible] whose attention had been attracted [illegible] asked them what they were [illegible] of them with an independent saucy [illegible] Well now didn't yer never see [illegible] before? Haint I got a much rig[illegible] as you have? The gentleman [illegible] the point was well taken and went [illegible] to his belief that the fam[illegible] Young America was in no present danger [illegible] becoming extinct.

PERSONALS. Mr F S Kearney, U S Ma[illegible] for Washington Territory arrived down from Walla Walla Wednesday evening en route to [illegible] to attend the sitting of the Supreme Court. He goes on this morning.

Ex Gov Woods will take the next outgoing steamer for San Francisco. He is going east on business and will be absent probably two or three months.

Mr W B Carter, late of the Corvallis Gazette, [illegible] this city awaiting the sailing of the steamer [illegible] going east—on a visit.

Mr E S McComas, State Land Register for Eastern Oregon, has been at Salem, Oregon City and Portland for the last two or three weeks, engaged in procuring maps for use in his office at La Grande. He left yesterday morning for home.

FORCED HOMES.—Yesterday at the corner of Stark and First streets, we saw a gentleman pedestrian startled almost out of a pair of high topped boots by the falling on the awning and sidewalk beside him, of the mud which was the home of a family of swallows before the swallows took their flight. Looking up we observed that the cornice of the building supported quite a village of these swallow homes, and that ever and anon one of them would let go and come down with a crash and rattle on the pavement below. What havoc shall the coming of the swallows [illegible] to the last year's colony of builders! Time and a Webfoot winter will have wrought such desolation as must make the little winged immigrants wonder if a Prussian army has marched this way.

A TRAPPING TOUR.—Chris Collenburg, who for a long time has been a member of the Ma[illegible] Brass Band, has concluded to knock off tooting and go trapping. We met him yesterday afternoon on his way to his trapper's home [illegible] flatboat with a cabin on it to serve for parlor, kitchen and bedroom (bath room alongside wherever he may anchor). Mr. Jos Rapp is to accompany him. They propose to go down the Columbia as far as Lewis river, to [illegible] with [illegible] then trap up and down the [illegible] that put in on either side. The present expedition contemplates an absence of two or three months. Chris says he has got sick of tooting for the glory of other people and sick of fiddling for other people to dance, and now he is going for fur.

STEAMER FITTED UP IN THE FASHION.—The steamer Cascade has been for some time on the ways at the Boneyard undergoing repairs and a general refitting. We notice that a wheel house has been built over her wheel, an oddity in the world of stern wheel steamers. Though a handsome piece of work it looks, for all the world, like a fashionable female appendage. Being connected with a Cascade, we should call it a waterfall, only it is on the wrong end, and we are compelled, notwithstanding our nice [illegible] of propriety, to pronounce it a Grecian bend.

PREPARING FOR THE HOLIDAYS.—The preparations in this city for the approaching holiday[illegible] are exceeding anything heretofore known. In every department of trade which ever devotes itself to such matters the stocks laid in are enormous and already goods are being put up so as to display them to the best possible advantage. If the people only buy half as liberally as the dealers evidently anticipate there will be no end to the present-giving and no measure to the happiness diffused in these coming holidays of 1870.

THE FIRST DISASTER OF THE WINTER.—The torrents of rain that fell on Wednesday and during the succeeding night did some mischief in this city. We learn that in two or three places up town the filling in of some of the unfinished streets was washed out. One property owner lost three hundred yards of dirt lately put in and one or more of the street contractors lost somewhat heavily. A the prevailing cost of filling these losses are considerable to say nothing of the consequent delay of the street grading.

CONTRACT FOR PACKED MEAT.—We learn that Mr A. H. Johnson, one of the leading packers of this State has just concluded a contract for furnishing the British fleet in the North Pacific with a large quantity of mess beef in barrels. Mr Johnson's brands of mess meats have a high reputation all along the Pacific coast. With Mr Cross they are now quoted above all other brands, except it may be a few fancy ones from the corn and stall feeding States of the Mississippi valley.

THE TRIAL [illegible] BEACH.—The second [illegible] Charles Beach on the charge of robbing Mr [illegible] at East Portland will begin this morning immediately upon the opening of the [illegible] [illegible] understood that jurors residing on [illegible] side [illegible] be sought for the reason that the robbery has been so generally discussed in the [illegible] difficult to find men who have not expressed or formed an opinion.

COMPLAINTS ABOUT THE STREETS. Complaints are often made about the dirty and littered condition of the streets. The streets are really in a filthy condition and unless the Commissioner [illegible] there will be nearly as much cause for complaint as there used to be when [illegible] in all departments under Dem[illegible] administration.

MASONIC. At a regular communication of Washington Lodge No 16 A F and A M held at their hall on [illegible] December [illegible] the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: [illegible] W M; George W Smith [illegible] J W; [illegible] Treas; Tyler [illegible]

AN UNPLEASANT INCIDENT OF THE EXCURSION —We learn from a returned excursionist who went no further than Aurora that among the passenger cars used on the occasion were two or three new ones and that as is frequently the case with new cars there was some trouble with the bearings The journals heated badly by friction and it was found necessary to stop to cool them The progress made was consequently not as rapid as it would have been otherwise. Upon reaching Aurora it was determined to send back the car that gave the most trouble and the guests were in consequence put into the remaining cars of the train and there being something like two hundred and fifty of them they found themselves somewhat thicker than was consistent with even modest ideas of comfort or elbow room though everybody accepted the situation with the best possible humor and went on their way with overflowing spirits The returned passenger car though it came down empty labored badly the journals getting so hot once or twice as to set fire to the lubricating oil and the stoppages delayed the down train nearly two hours.

YOUNG AMERICA TAKES A WHIFF.—A group of little boys, apparently from eight to twelve years old, attracted considerable attention yesterday and much amusement by their awkward though energetic and persistent attempts to cultivate a smoking and puffing art. They had among them at first only one pipe which they took a whiff at in turn, but this was too slow for such fast young gentlemen and in a few minutes they had each a pipe and clay pipe and cane stem and then seated themselves in a friendly stairway to enjoy being seen they puffed and blowed vigorously determined to do or die When finally a gentleman whose attention had been attracted to the "happy family," asked them what they were at, one of them, with an independent saucy air replied, "Well, now didn't yer never see no body smoke before? Haint I got's much right as a man as you have?" The gentleman considered the point was well taken and went his way giving utterance to his belief that the family of Young America was in no present danger of becoming extinct.

PERSONAL.—Mr E S Kearney U S Marshal for Washington Territory arrived down from Walla Walla, Wednesday evening en route to Olympia, to attend the sitting of the Supreme Court. He goes on this morning

Mr. Woods will take the next outgoing steamer for San Francisco He is going east on business and will be absent probably two or three months.

Mr. W. B. Carter, late of the Corvallis Gazette, is in the city awaiting the sailing of the steamer for Idaho going east—on a visit

Mr. E S McComas, State Land Register for Eastern Oregon, has been at Salem Oregon City and Portland for the last two or three weeks and has been procuring maps for use in his office at La Grande. He left yesterday morning for home

SWALLOW HOMES.—Yesterday at the corner of Oak and First streets, we saw a gentleman ... startled almost out of a pair of high heel boots, by the falling on the awning and ... beside him, of the mud which was the ... of a family of swallows before the swallows took their flight Looking up we observed the cornice of the building supported quite a number of these swallow homes, and that ever and anon some of them would let go and come down with a ... and rattle on the pavement below ... shall "the coming of the swallows" ... the last year's colony of builders! ... Webfoot winter will have wrought ... as must make the little winged ... wonder if a Prussian army has ... this way

TRAPPING TOUR —Chris Collenburg, who for a long time has been a member of the Metropolitan Brass Band, has concluded to knock off and go trapping We met him yesterday on his way to his trapper's home—a boat with a cabin on it to serve for parlor and bedroom (bath room alongside when at anchor). Mr Joe Rapp is to accompany him. They propose to go down the river as far as Lewis river, to begin with and then trap up and down the streams that put in on either side. The present expedition contemplates an absence of two or three months He says he has got sick of tooting for the ... other people and sick of fiddling for ... people to dance, and now he is going for ...

FITTED UP IN THE FASHION —The ... has been for some time on the ... boneyard, undergoing repairs and a ... fitting We notice that a wheel house ... built over her wheel—an oddity in the ... of stern-wheel steamers. Though a hand ... piece of work, it looks, for all the world, ... like the female appendage Being constructed ... like a Grecian ..., we should call it a waterfall ... on the wrong end, and we are compelled ... notwithstanding our nice sense of propriety, ... to ... it a Grecian bend.

PREPARING FOR THE HOLIDAYS —The preparations in this city for the approaching holidays ... anything heretofore known In ... every line of trade which ever devotes ... attention to such matters the stocks laid in are enormous ... already goods are being put up so as ... to show to the best possible advantage ... only buy half as liberally as the ... anticipate there will be no end ... giving and no measure to the happiness ... in these coming holidays of 1870

THE FIRST DISASTER OF THE WINTER —The ... rain that fell on Wednesday and during ... the following night did some mischief in this city We learn that in two or three places up town the filling in of some of the unfinished streets washed out One property owner lost three ... yards of dirt lately put in and one or ... of the street contractors lost somewhat ... At the prevailing cost of filling, these ... are considerable, to say nothing of the ... delay of the street grading

CONTRACT FOR PACKED MEAT —We learn that Mr L H Johnson, one of the leading packers of this State, has just concluded a contract for furnishing the British fleet in the North Pacific with a large quantity of mess beef in barrels Mr Johnson's brands of mess meats have a high reputation all along the Pacific coast With Mr J's ... they are now quoted above all other brands ... it may be, a few fancy ones from the corn ... growing States of the Mississippi valley

THE TRIAL OF CHARLES BURCH —The second trial of Charles Burch on the charge of robbing Mr English at East Portland will begin this morning immediately upon the opening of the Court. It is understood that jurors residing out of the city will be sought for the reason that the case has been so generally discussed in the city as to render it difficult to find men who have not made up ... or formed an opinion

COMPLAINTS ABOUT THE STREETS —Complaints are often made about the dirty and littered condition of the streets The streets are really in a filthy condition, and unless the Commissioner bestirs himself soon there will be nearly as much cause for complaint as there used to be when the city was in all departments under Democratic administration

MASONIC.—At a regular communication of Washington Lodge No 46, A F and A M held at their hall in East Portland December 7 the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, J W Pratt, W M George W Smith S W ; John Harrison J W A J Dufur Treas ; J A Newell, Secretary H Y Owen Tyler.

TO SAIL.—The bark Whistler is getting the balance of her cargo aboard and will probably leave about Monday She will take from here about six hundred tons of produce and complete a cargo of between eight hundred and nine hundred tons at various points down the river at St Helens, Astoria etc.

GAY AND FESTIVE —The bark Ty... at the old dock and the Gauger at the new railroad docks were decked out most gaily yesterday with flags in honor of the grand railroad excursion Judging from the number of colors they must have had up the flags of all nations past, present and to come.

DIDN'T GO —We noticed yesterday that the capitalists so-called and the anti railroad men of the Herald didn't mostly go on the excursion to Albany. They were, no doubt too busy in the construction of the West Side road

GONE FOR SILETZ —Ben Simpson Indian Agent at Siletz Reservation has been in the city for a day or two laying in supplies for his agency

LOCAL BREVITIES

There is considerable business and travel now on the Portland and Monticello route

A longshoreman at work discharging railroad iron from the Gauger was badly hurt Wednesday afternoon by the falling of a rail upon his leg

The steamer Fannie Troup will hereafter leave Portland at half past two P M a half hour earlier than usual

The river has commenced rising at a very cheerful rate and steamboat men are wearing jollier countenances than they used to was

The steamship Idaho will sail at 4 o clock P M to-morrow for San Francisco

The spire of the new Congregational Church is being finished in a very handsome style of architecture

The assessment roll of East Portland will be open for correction, at the office of the Recorder till the 15th inst when it will be closed

AMUSEMENTS

ORO FINO THEATER —There was an increased attendance upon the second presentation of "Rob Roy" at Oro Fino Theater The play was performed in much greater perfection, in all respects than on the preceding evening and it gave the highest satisfaction to the auditors The unquestionable popularity of the piece has induced the management to put it up again for this evening

THE CATHOLIC FAIR —We advise the lovers of good music and those who delight in a throng to visit Philharmonic Hall this evening In addition to the attractions of richly furnished booths and their fair attendants there will be music by the string band of the Twenty third Infantry piano and violin duets and vocal solos by amateur singers For the public spirited there will be numerous chances to get rid of money for the hungry an elegant lunch and for all a pleasant social evening

The Chemeketa Hotel at Salem will be opened to the public on the 26th inst

A nugget of gold worth $83 was found near Hogem, in the Eagle creek diggings, on Friday of last week

Two new cases of small pox were reported at Salem yesterday both children, in the family of J D Jordan We have not learned other particulars.

The regular city butchers and market men at Salem want an ordinance imposing a license tariff of $100 per annum upon the itinerant venders of fresh meat

Dr Skiff contests the election of John Barry as Alderman from the 3d Ward Salem If successful this will give the majority in the Council to the Republicans The basis of this contest is not stated

J C Burrows has applied for a franchise to supply the Capital city with wholesome water The wide streets of Salem will afford a profitable business to some stirring plumber and gas fitter —when the gas and water works are fairly introduced there

A cow in North Salem is reported as having the "prevailing disease"—at all events the family owning the brute have quit using her milk The Statesman says "cow pox is common and not dangerous in fact our doctors will be glad to know of an opportunity to secure good vaccine matter

James Powderly, of Baker city took about two ounces of laudanum on the 29th mistaking the article for whisky! His life was saved by Dr Boyd who happened to hit the patient just at the right time and administered a quart of hot coffee then a strong dose of ipecac and a plentiful supply of tepid water

The Statesman of Thursday says Yesterday Dr Payton was sent for in haste to attend a child of Mr Chambers, living in the hills about four miles south of town said to be very dangerously burned. This is the second case within a few days, as the child of Mrs Wright that died the other day was scalded by falling into hot suds.

The Washington Territory Supreme Court is in session at Olympia A full bench is present which is an unusual occurrence the Tribune says owing to the frequent changes in the judiciary of late But few causes were before the Court on opening System run Down.

Persons fle all with their systems to run down rather than ... by over work accompanied by a neglect of the proper means of invigoration The result is what is called GENERAL DEBILITY in other words a failure ... collapse of the physical forces accompanied usually by great depression of spirits

The best remedy in such cases is Hostetter s Stomach Bitters Whether the state of exhaustion has been brought on by excessive physical labor dissipation anxiety of mind exposure or any other cause the remedial effect of this great stimulant will be found equally prompt and certain As a restorative after severe sickness has prostrated the bodily and mental energies it is pronounced by competent medical authority THE BEST TONIC IN USE If men were not foolishly careless about their health and over confident in themselves, they would always when engaged in any work that required great exertion use corresponding means of sustaining their strength For this purpose Hostetters Bitters are invaluable All toilers should use them as an invigorant

For those constantly employed in indoor occupations especially in crowded workshops they may be reckoned as the very best safeguard of health Where there is a predisposition to constipation or a tendency to bilious ness they may be truly said to be a specific for which there is no substitute

Teach us to Wait

BY PHŒBE CARY.

Why are we so impatient of delay
  Longing forever for the time to be?
For thus we live to-morrow in to-day,
  Yes, and to-morrow we may never see.

We are too hasty; not reconciled
  To let kind nature do her work alone;
We plant our seed and like a foolish child
  We dig it up to see if it has grown.

The good that is to be we covet now,
  We cannot wait for the appointed hour;
Before the fruit is ripe we shake the bough,
  And seize the bud that folds away the flower.

When midnight darkness reigns we do not see
  That the sad night is mother of the morn;
We cannot think our own sharp agony,
  May be the birth pang of a joy unborn.

Into the dust we see our idols cast,
  And cry, that death has triumphed, life is void!
We do not trust the promise, that the last
  Of all our enemies shall be destroyed!

With rest almost in sight the spirit faints,
  And heart and flesh grow weary at the last
Our feet would walk the city of the saints,
  Even before the silent gate is passed.

Teach me to wait until thou shalt appear—
  To know that all thy ways and times are just;
Thou seest that we believe and fear,
  Lord, make us also to believe and trust!

You may go to a phrenologist and have your bumps examined with a view to matrimony, before you ask Mary Jane or Laura Ellen to be yours; but after you have put the question to the damsel, after the happy day is fixed, after the wedding hour and place are announced—then keep strictly away from the craniologist. Else may you conduct yourself after the mean manner of this young gentleman in Rensselaer, Indiana, of whom we have just read. He was to lead his bride to the altar publicly, in open church, at ten o'clock on a certain Sunday morning; but on Saturday he was not to be found. If it be not profane to say so, he had "vamoosed" the sacred edifice. Only he left behind a note: "I will not be alive when you find this." Now, this was a fib, for the fugitive groom has been heard of in the town of Omaha, Nebraska. Not to put too fine a point upon it, he absconded, even as Miss Pecksniff's lover does in the story. The truth came out. The young man had consulted a peripatetic phrenological lecturer, who told him that he had "phrenological and temperamental incompatibilities" adverse to marriage. The poor young person heard, believed, pondered—and bolted. We congratulate the young woman. Whatever may be her merits or demerits, no girl ought to be tied for life to such a donkey.

A JOKE ON PARTISAN EDITORS.—Soon after Chief Justice Chase assumed the gubernatorial chair in Ohio, he issued his proclamation appointing a thanksgiving day. To be sure of being orthodox, the Governor composed his proclamation almost exclusively of passages in the Bible, which he did not designate as quotations, presuming that every one would recognize them, and admire the fitness of the words, as well as his taste in the selection. The proclamation meeting the eyes of a Democratic editor, he pounced upon it—declared that he had read it before—couldn't say exactly where, but would take his oath that it was downright plagiarism from beginning to end! That would have been a pretty fair joke—but the next day the Republican editor came out valiantly in defense of the Governor, pronounced the charge false and libelous, and challenged any man living to produce one single line of the proclamation that had ever appeared in print before.

LEMON JUICE IN DIPHTHERIA.—Dr. Revillout, in a paper presented last summer to the French Academy of Medicine, asserts that lemon juice is one of the most efficacious appliances for diptheria, and he relates that, when a hair dresser in the hospital, his own wife was saved by this timely application. He got three dozen lemons, and gargled her throat with the juice, she swallowing a little at the same time, in order to act on the more deep-seated parts. The doctor has noted numerous cases of complete success obtained by this method of treatment.

This is a genuine epitaph on a child buried in an Ohio graveyard:

"He tasted life's bitter cup,
And then refused to drink it up;
He turned his little head aside,
Disgusted with the taste, and died."

Our local finances are much improved as compared with six or twelve months ago. The last monthly collections, of city bills, were made with comparative ease and the transmissions from country debtors are becoming more prompt. The close of the year will witness a great reduction of the aggregate indebtedness of merchants, farmers and all classes of consumers. The supply of coin at the banks is said to be largely in excess of what it was in the early part of the season, and there is a marked difference in the volume of money in circulation, the excess to which is mostly in gold coin. In all financial matters our city and State are enjoying a degree of prosperity which affords no ground for reasonable complaint. For this we are indebted, in no small degree, to the immense amount of coin expended in the construction of the Oregon and California railroad. Our receipts for grain, for shipment to foreign ports, and of dust and bullion from the mines of Eastern Oregon and Idaho, are not by any means inconsiderable. Altogether the financial situation is quite satisfactory.

The merchandise market maintains a moderate activity in most departments. The Columbia Valley region has ceased to send in orders for the season, but the demands for our own valley interior continue to be liberal, and nearly all jobbers and wholesale merchants find little time to be idle. We note a rather improved trade for the week in staple hardwares—quotations unchanged. In grocery lines there is the usual steady trade. Dry goods for winter use go off in moderate quantities at the figures heretofore quoted. Agricultural goods are mostly out of season and trade is running very light.

The produce market presents new features. All quotations are the same as last week. To date the receipts are exceedingly light compared with the corresponding period of last year—in consequence of the low stage of water in the Wallamet river. The railroad as yet, in consequence of almost exclusive attention to forwarding of construction material, is bringing down but little produce. As soon as the hundred miles of track shall be completed, and the river shall attain a good navigable stage, receipts of produce may be expected as large comparatively as they now are meagre.

Since our last report, the ship Montgomery Castle has commenced loading grain for Liverpool. The barks Lyra and Gunger now in port, and the Texas Propontis now in the river, will all, no doubt, load hence with grain. In the aggregate, therefore, of foreign shipments, the present season will exceed anything ever before known in the history of our State, and we may date from this year a new era, not only in our produce exports, but in our import trade in merchandise. A few days since we mentioned the intended sailing of the clipper bark Illimani from Liverpool direct to Portland, with a miscellaneous cargo of merchandise, consigned to the house of Janion & Rhodes. This, we are informed, is but the pioneer vessel of a contemplated permanent line to be established between the old world and new. We take occasion here to repeat what we then said: "The efforts of such houses as the one we have mentioned to accomplish direct trade with the great shipping depots of the world, call for the fullest acknowledgments of indebtedness from the people of Oregon. It will prove to be to our best interest to encourage at all times and places, the permanent establishment among us of firms like the one we have mentioned above."

CITY ADVERTISEMENTS.

Ordinance No. 905.

AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH A FERRY LANDING at the foot of F street.

The city of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. That a Ferry Landing be and is hereby established and located at the foot of F street; and the owners of the Ferry license from Clinton's Point shall have the right to come and depart from the landing without hindrance from any vessel, raft, craft, wagon or vehicle of any description, and the owner or owners of the Ferry from Clinton's Point shall have the right to make any improvements that may be necessary to perfect a good and sufficient landing; provided nothing in this section shall be so construed as giving the right to cut or destroy any part of F street, west of the east line of North Front street.

Section 2. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction before the Police Judge, be fined not less than five dollars, nor more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed twenty (20) days in the City Jail, or both, at the discretion of the Police Judge, for each and every offense.

Passed the Common Council November 30, 1870.

Ordinance No. 907.

AN ORDINANCE DEFINING VAGRANCY AND providing for the punishment thereof.

The city of Portland does ordain as follows:

Sec. 1. All persons who have no visible means of living or lawful occupation or employment by which to earn a living; all healthy persons who shall be found begging the means of support; all persons who habitually roam about the streets without any lawful business; all idle or dissolute persons who live in or about houses of ill-fame; all persons having no known occupation or business who shall be found wandering about the streets in the night after the hour of ten o'clock; shall be deemed vagrants.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the Chief of Police, and all policemen, either upon their own knowledge, information or belief, or upon the sworn complaint of any citizen of Portland, to arrest any person who is a vagrant as defined in Section One of this Ordinance, and to bring the person so arrested before the Judge of the Police Court, when sitting for trial, and there, after such proceedings shall be had as in trial upon other charges for violations of City Ordinance, and if upon such trial it shall be made to appear that such person is a vagrant, as defined in Section One of this Ordinance, such person shall be adjudged to be imprisoned in the City Jail not less than five days nor more than twenty days.

Section 3. That Section Ten of Ordinance No. 475, entitled "An Ordinance concerning offenses and disorderly conduct" is hereby repealed.

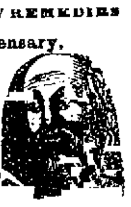
TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of affecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these [illegible] maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written [illegible], binding him [illegible] a [illegible] and permanent cure, or make no [illegible].

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions, by inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.

Consultations FREE.

Our Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his ad. [illegible] in the Daily Oregonian.

LAND DEPARTMENT
OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR the information of all concerned:

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary, he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect. I. R. MOORES, 5d1f 1aw Land Agent O. & C. R. R. Co., Salem.
